

Seasonal Charts & 5 year % Reports

Tuesday, October 06, 2009

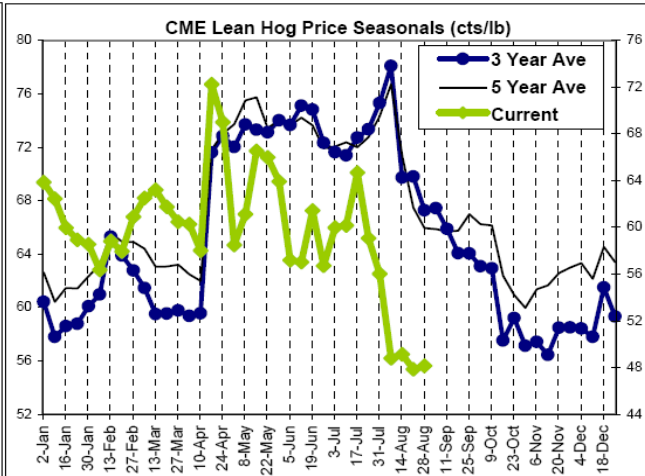

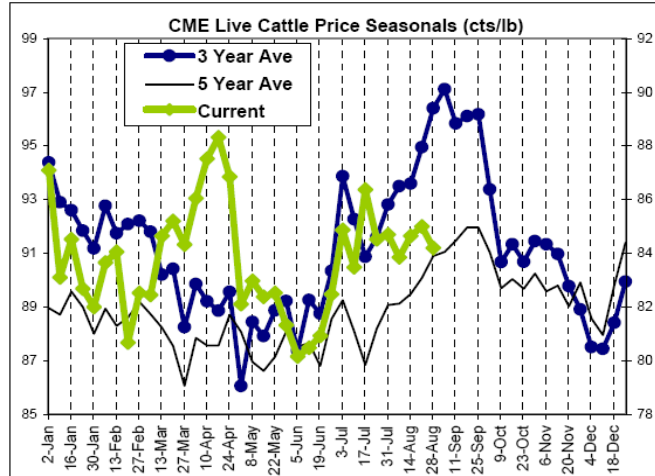

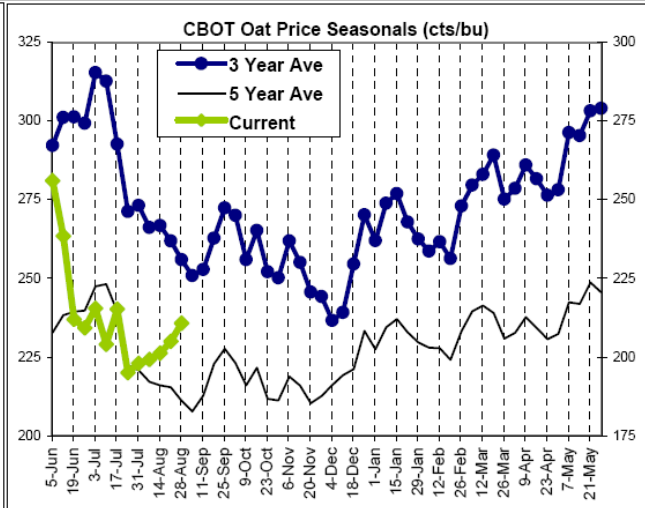

Short term charts show price action of the key new-crop contracts for the first half of September, since 1990. December corn has had a strong tendency to the downside, including losses over that span in five of the last six years, and eight of the last ten. November soybean action was fairly neutral (and mostly positive) until the past two years, before 70+ cent gains in 2007 as part of a $2.00/bushel Aug-Sep rally, then losses of nearly $1.50 in 2008 when November soybean price was slashed in half from July at $16.00 to October at $8.00.
